PREFACE

Gender Based Violence (GBV), which depicts any harmful act that is perpetrated against a person's will, based on socially ascribed differences between males and females, is recognized as an important health issue by health policies in Sri Lanka. Gender Based Violence maybe associated with many physical and psychological health issues. It may also lead to adverse reproductive health issues and high risk behaviours, which in turn will lead to further negative health consequences. However, effective management of a survivor of GBV requires a multi disciplinary approach, which may include medical, psychological, social and legal support.

As such, availability of a functional link between organizations providing these services is of paramount importance to provide an uninterrupted holistic service to the client.

Family Health Bureau, the nodal organization responsible for women's health in the Ministry of Health, has taken up the task of preparing a directory of the government institutions providing services to victims of GBV throughout the country. The objective of such compilation is to offer the service providers a means of communication with other institutions who provide services for clients, enabling them to refer clients for other required services.

We sincerely hope that this directory would enrich the link, collaboration and coordination between the multi-sectoral service providers.

We take this opportunity to pay our sincere gratitude and appreciation to all those who contributed to make this endeavour a success.

INTRODUCTION

Gender refers to the social differences between males and females that are deeply rooted in every culture, forms a part of learned behaviour, are changeable over time, and have wide variations both within and between cultures. Gender Based Violence is an umbrella term used for any harmful act that is perpetrated against a person's will, and is based on gender differences between males and females. Generally GBV has a greater impact on women and girls than on men and boys.

It is estimated that one in every three women around the world faces some form of violence during her life time. Sri Lankan experience is also similar. GBV not only poses a direct threat to women's health and well being, but also to the survival and wellbeing of children. Therefore, early identification and provision of supportive care to survivors is essential to prevent or minimize GBV, and thereby the negative consequences.

A multi-sectoral approach is required to address the survivors of gender based violence. The services that may be required include medical care, psychological support, hospice care, social support and legal support.

A variety of government institutions and organizations are available for provision of these services. Survivors may need acute medical care where the presence of violence may initially be identified. Further medical and emotional support are provided by GBV care centres named "Mithuru Piyasa/ Natpu Nilayam" at hospitals.

A number of officers are available in Children & Women's Units of Divisional Secretariat who provide a range of services for these victims. They are:

- Child Rights Promotion Officer
- Early Child Care Development Officer
- Women Development Officer
- Relief Sister

- Counseling Assistant
- Psycho Social Assistant

These officers can be reached by contacting the closest divisional secretariat office.

Children and Women's' bureau desks are established at selected police stations to receive complaints from public in relation to GBV and child abuse. The survivors are referred to appropriate authorities for further management and when necessary legal advices are provided.

If the survivor wishes to obtain legal aid, Legal aids commissions are available at court complexes free of charge.

A number of Non Governmental Organizations such as Women In Need (WIN), Sri Lanka Sumithrayo, Alcohol and Drug Information Centre (ADIC) and Mel Madura also provide services for these victims.

Availability of a linkage between these institutions and organizations would aid the service providers to do the necessary referrals so as to provide optimum care for these women.

This directory acts as a valuable document in creating a link between the institutions and organizations providing support for survivors of gender based violence.
